THE OTHER ART FAIR

The Other Art Fair returned to Brooklyn for the first time since 2019. Presented by Saatchi Art, the fair aspires to be the leading outlet for emerging artists to reach an art-buying audience directly. With 130 artists selected by the fair’s committee of “world experts,” the artist self-represented in what was a lively array of contemporary work selling for $100 to $10,000.

The fair partnered with ArTech Collective, an organization and community arts center “that provides opportunities for artists to develop and express themselves through inclusive, innovative and accessible approaches to traditional and new media.”

Society Six sponsored an “illustration corner” featuring four different popular illustrators throughout the fair who created small works of art live and made them free to attendees while supplies lasted. At the preview, Amber Vittoria was drawing up a colorful rainbow of characters, some with heads shaped like storm clouds inset in rivers of bright loops and stripes.
